ABBOTT LABORATORIES AWARD IN CLINICAL AND DIAGNOSTIC IMMUNOLOGY

American Society for Microbiology

Description:

The American Society for Microbiology invites nominations for the Abbott award in clinical and diagnostic immunology. This award honors a distinguished scientist in the fields of clinical or diagnostic immunology for outstanding achievements in those fields.

Nominees must have made significant contributions to understanding the functioning of the host immune system in human disease, clinical approaches to diseases involving the immune system or development, or clinical application of immunodiagnostic procedures.

The award includes $2,500 and travel to the society's general meeting, where the laureate will present the Abbott Award in Clinical and Diagnostic Immunology lecture.

EARLY-CAREER FELLOWSHIPS FOR RESEARCHERS IN INDIA

Wellcome Trust

Description:

The Wellcome Trust and the Department of Biotechnology India invites applications for their early-career fellowships for researchers in India. The scheme supports postdoctoral researchers in carrying out biomedical research that is relevant to human and animal welfare. Applicants should be in the final year of their PhD or have no more than four years of postdoctoral research experience. Applicants do not have to be Indian nationals or of Indian origin and need not have completed their PhD in India, however they must have an eligible host institution based in India. The fellowship is for four years and the final year or the majority of the final year must be spent at the host institution in India. The fellowship provides a salary, research expenses and a travel allowance.

JACK S KILBY SIGNAL PROCESSING MEDAL

Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers

Description:

The Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers invites nominations for the Jack S Kilby signal processing medal. This award is presented for outstanding achievements in signal processing. The achievement may be theoretical, technological, or commercial. Subject areas such as algorithms, architecture and applications, theoretical, technological or commercial achievements, patents, publications, products, generally recognized major technological advancement in the field of signal processing and the quality of the nomination are considered.

The award is open to any nominee, regardless of IEEE membership and may be presented to an individual or group of up to three in number. The award consists of a gold medal, bronze replica, certificate and a cash honorarium.

JAMES H MULLIGAN, JR EDUCATION MEDAL

Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers

Description:

The Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers invites nominations for its James H Mulligan, Jr education medal. This award is intended to recognize the importance of the educator's contributions to the vitality, imagination, and leadership of the members of the engineering profession. It is presented to an individual for outstanding contributions to education. The following criteria are considered: excellence in teaching and ability to inspire students; leadership in electrical engineering education through publication of course materials and writings on engineering education; leadership in the development of programs in curricula or teaching methodology; contributions to the engineering profession through research, engineering achievements, and technical papers; and participating in the education activities of professional societies.

Any individual can be nominated regardless of IEEE membership.

JOHN VON NEUMANN MEDAL

Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers

Description:

The Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers invites nominations for the John von Neumann medal. This is awarded for outstanding achievements in computer-related science and technology. Achievements may be theoretical, technological, entrepreneurial, and need not have been made immediately prior to the date of the award. Contributions may have been in computer hardware, software or systems art. The scope of the project must be the processing of information and includes the subject areas of computer architecture, base technologies, systems, languages, algorithms and protocols and application domains.

The medal may be presented to an individual or group, up to two in number and is open to anyone, regardless of IEEE membership. The award consists of a gold medal, bronze replica, certificate and honorarium.

MCDONALD FELLOWSHIP (FORMERLY DU PRE FELLOWSHIP) Multiple Sclerosis International Federation

Description:

The Multiple Sclerosis International Federation invites nominations for the McDonald fellowship. This enables young and talented researchers from emerging countries to travel to an established research institution to work with leading researchers in multiple sclerosis with a view to returning to their own country to establish a programme of MS research that involves the application of the newly learned techniques. This year applications in the area of symptom relief, rehabilitation and palliative care are encouraged.

Candidates must be citizens of an emerging country as defined by the World Bank, and may not be older than 35 years of age at the time of application. The focus of research should be in an area of neuroscience appropriate to MS.

The fellowship consists of a two-year grant, in the region of £30,000 per year, to cover travel and living costs, and an additional contribution of £2,000 per year to the host institution.

SIMON RAMO MEDAL Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers

Description:

The Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers invites nominations for its Simon Ramo medal. This is awarded for exceptional achievement in systems engineering and systems science. In the evaluation process, the following criteria are considered: significance of achievement in systems engineering and systems science or for technical leadership in a major innovative engineering project within the scope of the IEEE, originality, breadth, impact on technology, patents and publications, and the quality of the nomination.

The medal may be presented to an individual or up to three recipients and anyone may be nominated regardless of IEEE membership. The award includes a cash honorarium.

TOM W BONNER PRIZE IN NUCLEAR PHYSICS American Physical Society

Description:

The American Physical Society invites nominations for the Tom W Bonner prize in nuclear physics. The purpose is to recognize and encourage outstanding experimental research in nuclear physics, including the development of a method, technique, or device that significantly contributes in a general way to nuclear physics research.

Nominations are open to physicists whose work in nuclear physics is primarily experimental or a particularly outstanding piece of theoretical work. There is no time limitations on work described. The prize shall ordinarily be awarded to one person but may be shared when all the recipients have contributed to the same accomplishment.

The award consists of $10,000 and a certificate.

USFCC/J ROGER PORTER AWARD American Society for Microbiology

Description:

The American Society for Microbiology announces the United States Federation for Culture Collections/J Roger Porter award. The award honors outstanding efforts by a scientist who has demonstrated the importance of microbial biodiversity through sustained curatorial or stewardship activities for a major resource used by the scientific community.

The recipient will have greatly aided other scientists by demonstrating the fundamentals of culture collections and related resources and the rich biodiversity that such collections preserve. These resources may include collections of cells or microorganisms, databases or tools, or major reference works or services as an essential aspect of either one or more major publications or an extensive work effort.

The award includes $2,000 and travel expenses to the ASM general meeting. The recipient is expected to deliver the USFCC/J Roger Porter award lecture.

KLUGE CENTER FELLOWSHIPS Library of Congress

Description:

The Library of Congress invites qualified scholars to conduct research in the John W Kluge Center using the Library of Congress collections and resources for a period of up to 11 months.

The center especially encourages humanistic and social science research that makes use of the library's large and varied collections. Interdisciplinary, cross-cultural or multi-lingual research is particularly welcome. Among the collections available to researchers are the world's largest law library and outstanding multi-lingual collections of books and periodicals. Deep special collections of manuscripts, maps, music, films, recorded sound, prints and photographs are also available.

Fellowships are tenable for periods up to 11 months at a stipend of $4,200 per month for residential research at the Library of Congress.

Scholars who have received a terminal advanced degree within the past seven years in the humanities, social sciences or in a professional field such as architecture or law are eligible. Applicants may be US citizens or foreign nationals.

B IOMEDICAL PRIZE Wiley Foundation

Description:

The Wiley Foundation invites nominations for its prize in biomedical sciences. This is intended to recognize breakthrough research in the pure or applied life sciences that is distinguished by its excellence, originality and impact on the understanding of biological systems and processes. The award may recognise a specific contribution or series of contributions by either an individual or group that demonstrate significant leadership in the development of research concepts or their clinical application. Preference will be given to research that champions novel approaches and challenges accepted thinking in the biomedical sciences. This is an international prize worth $35,000. Self nominations are not accepted.

GE & SCIENCE PRIZE FOR YOUNG LIFE SCIENTISTS

American Association for the Advancement of Science

Description:

The American Association for the Advancement of Science invites submissions for the GE & Science prize for young life scientists. The purpose is to recognize outstanding PhD graduate students in molecular biology from all regions of the world. This international prize will be awarded for the outstanding thesis in the general area of molecular biology as described in a 1000-word essay. The winning essay will be published in Science; essays of the regional award winners will appear in the online version of Science.

To be eligible:

- entrants must have been awarded their PhD between 1 January and 31 December 2010. Candidates for MD/PhD degrees are eligible to compete for the prize in either the year the PhD is awarded or the year the final degree is awarded;
- the research described in the entrant's thesis must be in the field of molecular biology;
- the prize will recognize only work that was performed while the entrant was a graduate student.

The judges may select up to three winners for each of the four geographic regions. The number of prizes awarded to each region is at the discretion of the judging panel and will be based on the comparative quality of the submissions. Total prizes will not exceed eight. All regional winners will compete for the grand prize of US$25,000.

The regional winners who do not receive the grand prize will be awarded US$5,000.

SCHOLARS PROGRAM AWARD

William T Grant Foundation

Description:

The William T Grant Foundation invites nominations under its scholars program. The scholars program supports promising early-career researchers from diverse disciplines, who have demonstrated success in conducting high-quality research and are seeking to further develop and broaden their expertise.

Projects should address issues that have compelling relevance for theory and policies/practices affecting the settings of youth aged 8 to 25 in the US, or a vulnerable sub-population of that youth, and projects should address the foundation's current research interests, including:

- enhancing our understanding of how settings work, how they affect youth development, and how they can be improved;
- when, how, and under what conditions research evidence is used in policy and practice that affect youth, and how its use can be improved.

Investigators at all non-profit institutions, both in the US and abroad, are eligible. Applicants must have received their terminal degree within seven years of submitting their application. The award may not be used as a postdoctoral fellowship. Funding is made available to the applicant's institution, providing support of $350,000 over a five year period.

TWAS-AAS-MICROSOFT AWARDS FOR YOUNG COMPUTER SCIENTISTS WORKING IN AFRICA

Academy of Sciences for the Developing World (formerly Third World Academy of Sciences)

Description:

The Academy of Sciences for the Developing World, in collaboration with Microsoft Research and the African Academy of Sciences, invites nominations for the TWAS-AAS-Microsoft award for young scientists. These recognise young scientists in Africa whose research in computer science promises to have a positive impact in the developing world. Nominees can be any nationality, but must have been resident and working in Africa for at least two years prior to their nomination and have earned their most recent research degree (master's or PhD) within the previous 10 years. Nominations are invited from national science academies, previous winners, senior academics, members of TWAS and AAS, and academics invited by Microsoft. Self-nomination or nomination by selection committee members is not accepted. Nominations of women scientists are particularly encouraged. Three winners will be selected from three different African countries. Each winner will receive €7,000, of which €2,000 may be spent at the recipient's discretion and €5,000 shall be earmarked for research.

DIELECTRIC SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY DIVISION THOMAS D CALLINAN AWARD Electrochemical Society

Description:

The Electrochemical Society invites nominations for the Thomas D Callinan award of the dielectric science and technology division. The purpose of this award is to promote interest and activity in the field of dielectric science and technology among scientists in their early careers. The granting of the award is based upon some outstanding achievement in dielectric science and technology. The award will be given to the author of a paper, or patent, reporting this new advance in dielectrics. For the purpose of the award, dielectric science and technology is defined as that area of knowledge which deals with the physics and chemistry of dielectric materials, as well as the mechanisms and operation of devices in which electrical energy can be stored or insulated in electrical or electronic equipment. The award consists of a scroll and a prize of $1,500.

GLOBAL EXCHANGE LECTURE COURSES

European Molecular Biology Organisation

Description:

The European Molecular Biology Organisation invites joint applications from European scientists and scientists in target countries for its global exchange lecture courses. These support the organisation of courses in India, China, Taiwan and Africa for the benefit of PhD students and postdoctoral researchers. Between 30 and 60 participants should benefit from the course. Funding is worth up to 20,000 euros. Funding should cover: advertising costs, travel and accommodation costs of the speakers and accommodation and some of the local travel costs of the students. Applications must be submitted jointly by local and European scientists.

JOHN J WASMUTH POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Hereditary Disease Foundation

Description:

The Hereditary Disease Foundation invites applications for the John J Wasmuth postdoctoral fellowships. Support is offered for research projects that will contribute to identifying and understanding the basic defect of Huntington's disease. Areas of interest include trinucleotide expansions, animal models, gene therapy, neurobiology and development of the basal ganglia, cell survival and death, and intercellular signaling in striatal neurons. The foundation accepts research applications from scientists internationally. Funding ranges from $40,500 to $56,000 per year for a maximum duration of two years. In addition, up to $8,000 for supplies is available.

MASTER'S FELLOWSHIP IN PUBLIC HEALTH AND TROPICAL MEDICINE Wellcome Trust

Description:

The Wellcome Trust invites applications for its master's fellowships in public health and tropical medicine. These aim to strengthen scientific research capacity in low- and middle-income countries by enabling junior researchers to gain research experience and high-quality research training at master's degree level.

Research projects must be in the area of public health or tropical medicine, aimed at understanding and controlling human and animal diseases relevant to local, national or global health. This can include laboratory-based molecular analysis of field or clinical samples, but projects focused solely on studies in vitro or using animal models will not normally be considered. Requests for research training support in the social sciences, demography, health economics, medical statistics and vector biology are of particular interest.

Each applicant must be a national or legal resident of a low- or middle-income country, at an early stage in their career, and should hold a first degree in a subject relevant to tropical medicine or public health (clinical or non-clinical).

Applicants must also be based at an eligible host institution in a low- or middle-income country for duration of the research project, and must identify an eligible sponsoring institution to administer the fellowship for the full tenure of the award.

While undertaking the master's course, fellows will receive a stipend to cover travel costs and tuition fees. Course fees will be paid according to the rate charged by the training institution. During the research project, a salary and overseas allowance will be provided, as well as research expenses worth up to £20,000 per year. Fellowships normally provide up to 30 months' support, with 12 months dedicated to undertaking a taught master's course and up to 18 months dedicated to conducting a research project.

DANIEL HAUGHTON SENIOR FACULTY AWARDS

National Multiple Sclerosis Society

Description:

The US National Multiple Sclerosis Society invites applications for the Daniel Haughton senior faculty awards. The award is granted to established investigators seeking support for specialized training in a field which they are not currently expert, inasmuch as such training will enhance their capacity to conduct research related to multiple sclerosis. Awards of this type, which are available annually, can be used for sabbatical support for qualified individuals.

US citizenship is not required for applicants who desire training in institutions in the United States. However, applicants who plan on training in other countries must be US citizens. These awards are typically of short duration, but funding will be considered for up to a year. Candidates may request partial underwriting of sabbatical support including fringe benefits. The amount of the salary must relate to the applicant's professional status, previous training and experience, and accomplishments in research. Typical award budgets are $100,000 or less.

F FP7 MARIE CURIE INTERNATIONAL INCOMING FELLOWSHIPS European Commission Framework Programme 7: People

Description:

The European Commission Framework Programme 7: People invites applications for the Marie Curie international incoming fellowships. These enable incoming top-class researchers active in a third country to work on research projects in Europe, with a view to developing mutually beneficial research cooperation.

The application should be made jointly by a researcher and a host organisation, as well as a return host organisation where applicable. Applicants may be of any nationality. Each applicant must hold a doctorate, or have at least four years of full-time equivalent work experience. Each researcher must have spent no more than 12 months of the preceding three years in the country of their host organisation.

The indicative budget for this call is €40 million. Projects may last for 12 to 24 months. FP7-PEOPLE-2012-IIF. OJ 2012/C 74/07.

APA EARLY CAREER AND SENIOR SCHOLAR HEALTH SERVICES RESEARCH AWARDS

American Psychiatric Association

Description:

The American Psychiatric Association invites nominations for its early career and senior scholar health services research awards. These awards promote health services research, support young investigators in their research efforts, and recognize significant contributions to the field.

The early career award recognizes the best nominated paper published during the past year by an early career psychiatrist, less than 40 years of age or within five years of training. This award is worth $500.

The senior scholar award recognizes singular or sustained research accomplishments by a researcher beyond early career status which have made an important contribution to the field of mental health services research. This award is worth $1000.

Nominations for both awards can be either from the individual or a colleague in the field. The proposed applicant must be an APA member.

F FUNDING FOR SCIENCE, ART, LITERATURE AND PUBLIC EDUCATION Alfred Kordelin Foundation - Alfred Kordelinin Yleinen Edistys- ja Sivistysrahasto

Description:

The Alfred Kordelin Foundation invites applications for funding for research, travel, study and publishing in the areas of science, art, literature and public education. The foundation grants funding for a variety of projects to promote Finnish public education and cultural enrichment and enable the representation of Finnish culture and knowledge abroad. The foundation directs funds to science, literature and the arts, and grants are available for individual researchers unless otherwise stated.

Science grants support work towards completion of doctorate thesis, postdoctoral science research, conference travel costs and costs occurring from proofing research work. Literature grants support publishing and translation of research and literature work, research, study and execution of mass media, theatre and circus and their further study abroad. Arts grants support research and further study of architecture, classic arts, music, industrial art and handicrafts, dance, photography and multimedia art in Finland and abroad. Public education grants support science and other factual publications, their translation and organisation of seminars, conferences and culturally significant events.

Large cultural project grants award funding for large scale national or international projects that may extend for several years. Research teams may apply for this particular grant.

Grants for writing and researching bibliographies are also available.

There is no maximum amount of funding that can be requested for science conference travel costs, literature, art, public education, large cultural project and bibliography grants but in 2010 award amounts ranged from €1,000 to €300,000. Science grants are worth €21,000 for a full year and €11,000 for six-month sabbaticals that enable the completion of doctorate thesis. Grants for postdoctoral research work are awarded for one to three years and are worth €25,000 per year.

NEXT GENERATION SOCIAL SCIENCES IN AFRICA: FELLOWSHIP IN PEACE, SECURITY AND DEVELOPMENT Council for the Development of Social Science Research (CODESRIA)

Description:

The Council for the Development of Social Science Research (CODESRIA) invites applications for its next generation social sciences in Africa: fellowship in peace, security and development. The programme offers fellowships to nurture the intellectual development and increase retention of early-career faculty in Ghana, Nigeria, South Africa, Tanzania, and Uganda. The programme assists fellows to develop research opportunities and skills, obtain doctoral degrees, and participate in robust research communities. The programme features three fellowship opportunities for early-career social science faculty who hold positions in accredited colleges and universities in Ghana, Nigeria, South Africa, Tanzania, and Uganda:

- doctoral dissertation proposal fellowship: supporting short-term research costs of up to $3,000 to develop a doctoral dissertation proposal.
- doctoral dissertation research fellowship: supporting nine to 12 months of dissertation research costs of up to $15,000 on a topic related to peace, security, and development.
- doctoral dissertation completion fellowship: supporting a one-year leave from teaching responsibilities with a stipend of up to $15,000 to permit the completion of a dissertation that advances research on peace, security, and development topics.

EV MCCOLLUM INTERNATIONAL LECTURESHIP IN NUTRITION American Society for Nutrition (formerly American Society for Nutritional Sciences)

Description:

The American Society for Nutrition invites nominations for the EV McCollum international lectureship in nutrition. This award provides a means to encourage sound advancements in nutritional science and their application for improving the health and well-being of people worldwide.

An outstanding nutritionist will be invited to lecture on a topic consistent with the purpose of the lectureship in a location that will assure a large and broad audience. Multiple presentations are encouraged. Nominations may be made by anyone, including members of the respective nominating committees and nonmembers of the society. Nominations for each award will be retained for two years. Candidates may be renominated and need not be members of the society. The awards are usually given to professionally active nutrition scientists.

Closing date: 31 Aug 12 (Forecast)

I INTERNATIONAL SCHOLARSHIPS

International Centre of Excellence in Water Resources Management

Description:

The International Centre of Excellence in Water Resources Management invites applications for its international scholarships. These attract high quality international students to education and training in water resources management. The scholarship programme aims to:

- provide high calibre students with the opportunity to study with ICE WaRM partners to further their knowledge;
- provide students with the opportunity to participate in research and advance their scientific knowledge in water resources management;
- encourage the exchange of ideas on best practice within water-related fields;
- provide students with the opportunity to participate in presentations, conferences, seminars and forums on contemporary issues in water resources management;
- provide the opportunity for students from organisations and countries currently facing major water issues to participate in programmes which they may not be able to fund;

- demonstrate a commitment to cultural change and diversity and the international sharing of knowledge and skills related to water resources management.

Scholarships for full payment of fees, valued at $40,000, and partial payment of fees, valued at $20,000, are available. This award is in Australian research income Category 2.

AWARD IN GERIATRIC ORAL RESEARCH

International Association for Dental Research and American Association for Dental Research

Description:

The International Association for Dental Research invites nominations for its award in geriatric oral research. This award is part of the association's distinguished scientist awards program which honors IADR members. The purpose of this award is to stimulate, encourage, and recognize outstanding research accomplishments in the field of geriatric oral research. The recipient must have conducted original and important investigations in any of the basic, clinical, or epidemiological sciences, including health services research and behavioral science, associated with geriatric oral research. The award will be based upon the recipient's contributions to the scientific community, the impact of the research, publications in refereed journals, and other scholarly activities. There are no age restrictions. Only IADR members may be nominated. The award consists of a $3,500 cash prize and a plaque.

FELLOWSHIPS

Utrecht University Descartes Centre

Description:

Utrecht University's Descartes Centre invites applications for its fellowship programme. Fellowships are intended to promote intellectual exchange and collaboration in the domains of the history, the philosophy, and the foundations of the sciences and humanities or any combination thereof. There are two kinds of fellowship available:

- junior fellowships. These support independent doctoral research and research at Dutch museums and archives. The fellow collaborates with other individuals at the Descartes Centre and opens new vistas for scholarship at the centre. The stipend is worth €1,500 per month;
- senior fellowships. These allow senior researchers to contribute to the Descartes Centre by means of public lectures, research seminars and teaching. The stipend is worth €2,500 per month.

Both fellowships are available for up to three months.

To be eligible for these fellowships, researchers must not reside in the Netherlands.

JUNIOR FELLOWSHIP PROGRAMME*Cern (European Organization for Nuclear Research)Description:

Cern, the European Organization for Nuclear Research, invites applications for its junior fellowships. These enable holders of a technical engineer degree or equivalent, with no more than four years of experience and at most a master's degree, to work in a research group. Fellowships are granted for one year initially and are normally extended for a second year. Extensions for part or all of a third year are granted only in exceptional circumstances. Applications are accepted from researchers from Cern member states, but a limited number of positions in the research sector are also available for scientists from non-member states. Stipends are calculated individually. Health insurance costs are covered and travel expenses for fellows and their family are granted. An installation grant, family allowance and child allowance can also be awarded.

O VERSEAS FELLOWSHIP SCHEME British Ecological Society

Description:

The British Ecological Society invites applications for its overseas fellowship scheme. This enables ecologists in developing countries to carry out innovative ecological research. Examples of possible research areas include plant-animal interactions, restoration ecology, microbial ecology, ecological processes and community ecology. Research on agriculture and forestry will not normally be supported unless the work contains a strong ecological emphasis.

Applicant must have previously been awarded a BES overseas bursary grant and be collaborating at a university or research institution (including field centres, NGOs, museums etc) that provides basic research facilities, with a project that is designed to be done in a developing country. The scheme is open to applicants based in Africa and its associated islands.

Fellowships are worth up to £15,000 for a period of up to 36 months, and cover limited in-country travel and salary. Fellows have the option of spending some time in centres outside of their research-base countries, gaining access to special facilities, libraries, seminars and conferences or temporarily attaching themselves to research groups.

PRIZE FOR NEWER RESEARCHERS

Society for Research into Higher Education

Description:

The Society for Research into Higher Education invites applications for its prize for newer researchers. In 2011 there will be two prizes of £3,000 available for a research project of one year's duration. These awards are intended to provide support for early stage researchers in the field of higher education research to enable them to:

- undertake a research project in their own right;
- develop research skills which will help advance their research career.

The primary purpose of these awards is to offer support to newer researchers intending to pursue a career in higher education research by providing funding for an initial research project and offering access to the resources of the society. Successful award holders are provided with the support of a mentor and, for UK based applicants, invited to become a member of the society's research and development committee which affords a wider involvement in higher education research developments.

Entry is open to all and not restricted to current SRHE members. Eligible researchers are those with a minimum of a first undergraduate degree and currently registered as a student with, or undertaking research associated with, a university or college department and with an interest in pursuing a career in higher education research. These awards are not available to support study towards a postgraduate qualification or to support research work intended as the basis for a PhD submission. Applicants must be within six years of the completion of a PhD or equivalent professional qualification.

SENIOR FELLOWSHIP PROGRAMME Cern (European Organization for Nuclear Research)

Description:

Cern, the European Organization for Nuclear Research, invites applications for its senior fellowships. These enable holders of a PhD, or between four and ten years of experience, to work in a research group. Fellowships are granted for one year initially and are normally extended for a second year. Extensions for part or all of a third year are granted only in exceptional circumstances. Applications are accepted from researchers from Cern member states, but a limited number of positions in the research sector are also available for scientists from non-member states. Stipends are calculated individually. Health insurance costs are covered and travel expenses for fellows and their family are granted. An installation grant, family allowance and child allowance can also be awarded.

LONG-TERM INVITATION FELLOWSHIP PROGRAMME FOR RESEARCH IN JAPAN

Japan Society for the Promotion of Science

Description:

The Japan Society for the Promotion of Science invites applications for its long-term invitation fellowship program for research in Japan. These allow researchers employed at designated Japanese research institutions to invite fellow researchers from other countries to Japan to participate in cooperative activities at their research institutions. All fields of the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences are included under this programme.

Invited researchers must be university professors, associate/assistant professors or research associates (or of equivalent status). They must be citizens of a country that has diplomatic relations with Japan. Other researchers may be eligible if they have held a doctorate degree for a period of more than six years from 1 April 2008. If the candidate is of Japanese nationality, they must have lived abroad and been actively engaged in research for a period of over 10 years.

Fellowships last two to 10 months and include a round-trip air ticket, a monthly maintenance allowance of 369,000 yen, a domestic research travel allowance of 100,000 yen, research expenses of 40,000 yen and an overseas travel accident and sickness insurance coverage. The host will receive a cooperation allowance of 50,000 yen.

Applications must be submitted to JSPS by a host scientist in Japan through the head of their university or institution. Foreign scientists wishing to participate in this programme are advised to establish contact with a Japanese or foreign-resident researcher in their field and to ask them to submit an application.

I INTERMEDIATE FELLOWSHIPS IN PUBLIC HEALTH AND TROPICAL MEDICINE Wellcome Trust

Description:

The Wellcome Trust invites applications for its intermediate fellowships in public health and tropical medicine. These enable high-calibre, mid-career researchers from low- and middle-income countries to establish an independent research programme. Research projects must be in the area of public health or tropical medicine, aimed at understanding and controlling human and animal diseases of local, national or global health importance. This can include laboratory-based molecular analysis of field or clinical samples, but projects focused solely on in-vitro or animal model studies will not normally be considered under this scheme.

Applicants must be nationals or legal residents of a low- and middle-income country and should be graduates in a subject relevant to public health or tropical medicines with a PhD, or medical graduates with a higher qualification equivalent to membership of the UK Royal Colleges of Physicians or recognised as specialists within a relevant research area. Three to six years' postdoctoral or research experience is required.

Fellows must be based at an eligible sponsoring institution in a low- and middle-income country that will administer the fellowship, and must have an appropriate sponsor who holds an established post for the duration of the award.

Fellowships last for up to five years and include basic salary, research expenses, training costs, funding allowance and travel to meetings. Research-dedicated costs may be up to £60,000 per year.

Closing date: 05 Sep 12 (Forecast)

Deadline information: !! Call has not yet been announced by sponsor but this is the approximate deadline we expect.
Deadline: preliminary applications 5

March 2012; invited full applications 28 May 2012. This call is repeated 2 times a year.

TRAINING FELLOWSHIPS IN PUBLIC HEALTH AND TROPICAL MEDICINE Wellcome Trust

Description:

The Wellcome Trust invites applications for its training fellowships in public health and tropical medicine. These provide researchers from low- and middle-income countries, who are at an early stage in the establishment of their research careers, with opportunities for research experience and high-quality research training relevant to health in low- and middle-income countries. Research projects must be in the area of public health or tropical medicine, aimed at understanding and controlling human and animal diseases of local, national or global health importance. This can include laboratory-based molecular analysis of field or clinical samples, but projects focused solely on in-vitro or animal model studies will not normally be considered under this scheme.

Applicants must be nationals or legal residents of a low- and middle-income country and should be graduates in a subject relevant to public health or tropical medicine with a PhD and no more than three years' postdoctoral experience, or medical graduates with a higher qualification equivalent to membership of the UK Royal Colleges of Physicians and some initial research experience. Applicants may also apply if they do not have a PhD, but have a clinical, basic or master's degree and some initial research experience, with the expectation that they will register for a PhD.

Fellows must be based at an eligible sponsoring institution in a low- and middle-income country that will administer the fellowship, and must have an appropriate sponsor who holds an established post for the duration of the award.

The fellowship is normally for three years, but may be for up to four years for those who wish to undertake a relevant master's training or diploma course, and includes a salary, research expenses, training costs, a funding allowance and travel to meetings. Research-dedicated costs may be up to £30,000 per year.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT AWARD

Medical Research Council (MRC)

Description:

The Medical Research Council invites applications for its career development award. This provides up to five years' support for outstanding postdoctoral researchers who wish to consolidate their research skills and make the transition from postdoctoral research trainee to independent investigator. It includes an option of 12 months' research training outside the UK, in UK industry, or at another UK research centre, to enable fellows to acquire new transferable techniques and skills.

Applicants should have a PhD or DPhil and have at least three to six years' postdoctoral experience at the time of application. Applicants who hold a research-oriented MSc degree and have undertaken at least four years' appropriate postgraduate research work - such as in medical statistics - may be considered. There are no residence eligibility restrictions.

The award provides salary, support staff, consumables, travel costs and capital equipment appropriate for the research project under full economic costs.

ADVANCED POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation International

Description:

The Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation International invites applications for its advanced postdoctoral fellowships. This program is designed to give qualified and promising health scientists an opportunity to receive full-time research training, and to assist them in transitioning from a fellowship to an independent faculty-level position. The three-year award provides critical research training that enables fellows to work at the leading edge of their chosen field. An additional, optional one-year transition award will further assist fellows to proceed to independent faculty or research appointments and will serve as a bridge between the fellowship and independent competitive research funding. During the fellowship phase, the applicant is required to work with a sponsor who can provide a training environment conducive to beginning a career in diabetes-relevant research. Applicants must have a doctoral degree or the equivalent from an accredited institution and must not be simultaneously serving an internship or residency. The doctoral degree should have been received no more than five years before the start of the fellowship. Fellowship research may be conducted at US and international for-profit and non-profit, public and private organizations. There are no citizenship requirements. Budgets worth up to $90,000 per year for up to three years may be requested.

EARLY CAREER PATIENT-ORIENTED DIABETES RESEARCH AWARD

Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation International

Description:

The Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation invites applications for its early career patient-oriented diabetes research awards. These awards are intended to support investigators who plan to pursue a career in diabetes related clinical investigation. They are awarded in the later stages of training and include the ability for recipients to transition to independent faculty or research appointments. The training must be in a type one diabetes-related and patient-oriented research project. Relevant research areas include mechanisms of human disease, therapeutic interventions, clinical trials, and the development of new technologies. Candidates will normally have an MD or MD-PhD, hold an appointment or joint appointment in a subspecialty of clinical medicine and conduct human clinical research. The applicant must be sponsored by an investigator who is a full-time clinical researcher at an accredited institution. Awards are worth $150,000 per year over five years.

POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation International

Description:

The Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation invites applications for its postdoctoral fellowships. These fellowships are designed to attract qualified, promising scientists entering their professional career in the diabetes research field. The applicant is required to work with a sponsor who is affiliated full-time with an accredited institution and who can provide a training environment conducive to beginning a career in research relevant to type one diabetes.

Fellowships are intended for investigators in a relatively early stage of their career, ie the first degree (MD, PhD, DMD, DVM or equivalent) will have been received no more than five years before the fellowship. Applicants may not have faculty appointments. Applicants from US and international, for-profit and non-profit, and public and private organizations are eligible. There are no citizenship requirements. The award will provide funds of between $43,240 and $57,568 per year over three years.

SINGAPORE NATIONAL RESEARCH FOUNDATION FELLOWSHIP

Singapore National Research Foundation

Description:

The Singapore National Research Foundation invites applications for its fellowship scheme. The fellowship will provide funding to exceptional, young scientists and researchers (below 40 years of age) to carry out independent, leading-edge research in Singapore. Appointees would be offered tenure-track faculty positions at any of Singapore's universities or related research organizations. Research proposals in the following clusters are considered: computer science (infocomm technologies and interactive digital media), engineering (all branches), life sciences and natural/physical sciences. Appointees are required to have direct interaction with industry or generate intellectual property as evidenced by: industry collaboration; invention disclosures/patents filed; contribution to innovation and entrepreneurship activities.

Applicants may be of any nationality, and must possess a PhD degree in any discipline of science and technology. The fellowship can only be used to fund research conducted in Singapore. Research project proposals which are already funded by other agencies or being considered for funding by other agencies are not eligible. Each Singapore NRF fellowship provides a research grant of up to US$2 million over five years and a separate salary component equivalent to that of an assistant professor's remuneration package in Singapore's autonomous universities.

S TOCKHOLM WATER PRIZE Stockholm International Water Institute

Description:

The Stockholm Water Foundation invites nominations for its 2011 Stockholm water prize. Any activity or actor which contributes broadly to the availability, conservation and protection of the world's water resources, and to improved water conditions which contribute to the health of the planet's inhabitants and ecosystems, is eligible to be nominated. The activities can be within the fields of education and awareness raising, human and international relations, research, water management or water-related local activities. The work of nominees should have great potential or proven impact. Self-nominations and direct approaches to members of the nominating committee will disqualify any nominee from further consideration. The prize is worth $150,000.

TROLAND RESEARCH AWARDS

National Academies

Description:

The National Academy of Sciences invites nominations for its Troland research awards. Two awards, each given to young investigators aged 40 or younger are offered to recognize unusual achievement and further empirical research in psychology regarding the relationships of consciousness and the physical world. Funds are to be used by the awardee to support their research within the broad spectrum of experimental psychology, including the topics of: sensation, perception, motivation, emotion, learning, memory, cognition, language, and action. For both awards, preference will be given to experimental work taking a quantitative or other formal approach, including mathematics and explicit algorithms or symbolic logics of various types, or to experimental research seeking physiological explanations. There are no nationality restrictions, nor condition of NAS membership.

VERNON YOUNG INTERNATIONAL AWARD FOR AMINO ACID RESEARCH American Society for Nutrition (formerly American Society for Nutritional Sciences)

Description:

The American Society for Nutrition invites nominations for the Vernon Young international award for amino acid research. The award is given to an investigator for a single outstanding piece of research or for a series of papers in a related area of amino acid metabolism completed early in their career (usually interpreted as within 10 years of postgraduate training). The award is worth $2,500.

Nominations may be made by anyone, including members of the nominating committee and non-members of the society, and will be retained for two years. Candidates may be re-nominated and need not be members of the society. The award is usually given to a professionally active nutrition scientist.

CYRIL GARNHAM FELLOWSHIP Royal Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene

Description:

The Royal Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene invites applications for the Cyril Garnham fellowship. This aims to enable young scientists to conduct short-term field projects in tropical medicine and hygiene. Preference will be given to topics in parasitology or medical entomology and to applicants with less than five years' postdoctoral experience. There are no restrictions on nationality and age. Applications from non-fellows should be supported by a fellow who can attest to the value of the project and to the competence of the applicant to carry out the work. One fellowship of up to £4,000 will be awarded annually. This is mainly intended to support projects of up to six months' duration, but longer periods may also be considered.

YOUNG INVESTIGATOR GRANT

Brain and Behavior Research Foundation (formerly NARSAD)

Description:

The Brain and Behavior Research Foundation invites applications for its young investigator award. The program provides support for promising scientists to either extend their research fellowship training or to begin careers as independent research faculty. The program is intended to facilitate innovative research opportunities and supports basic, translational or clinical investigators, but research must be relevant to the treatment and prevention of serious psychiatric disorders such as schizophrenia, bipolar, mood disorders, anxiety disorders, or child and adolescent psychiatric disorders.

One and two year awards of up to $30,000 per year are provided. Applicants must have a doctoral degree and be employed in research training, or be in a faculty or independent research position. The award is intended to support postdoctoral fellows, instructors and assistant professors. Applicants must have an on-site mentor or senior collaborator who is an established investigator.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT AWARD

American Society of Clinical Oncology

Description:

The American Society of Clinical Oncology invites applications for its career development award. This award provides funding to clinical investigators who have received their initial faculty appointment to establish an independent clinical cancer research program. ASCO supports application submissions in all oncology subspecialties that have a clinical research focus. Proposals must have a patient-orientated focus including a clinical research study including humans.

Eligible applicants must be physicians (MD, DO, or international equivalent with explanation) and be in the first, second or third year of a full-time, primary faculty appointment in a clinical department at an academic medical institution. Applicants should have a mentor from a sponsoring institution and be able to commit more than 50 per cent of full-time effort in research during the award period. Applicants must be a member of ASCO or submit a membership application with the grant application.

The grant is worth $200,000 over three years.

POPULATION HEALTH SCIENTIST FELLOWSHIP

Medical Research Council (MRC)

Description:

The Medical Research Council invites applications for its population health scientist fellowship. Population health sciences are concerned with the study of social and environmental influences on physical and mental health and wellbeing, with reference to a range of up-stream influences such as early life experiences, the social and economic conditions in which people live and environmental exposures that can affect wellbeing. A key aim is to understand how and why ill-health varies within and between populations and across the life course, and how to improve the health of the public through clinical or public health interventions including those that may be delivered outside conventional health services. Disciplines relevant to this scheme include: social, clinical, life course and genetic epidemiology; biostatistics; health demography; medical sociology; health psychology; medical anthropology; human geography; health economics. The research fellowship provides the opportunity to spend time in an overseas research centre, a second UK research centre or UK industrial centre. MRC would normally support with justification one visit, which may be no longer than 12 months.

Science graduate applicants should hold a PhD or DPhil in a relevant discipline. Applicants who hold a research-oriented master's degree will also be considered. Medical or dental graduates should be post-registration up to and including specialty registrar grade. Nurses, midwives and members of the allied health professions must have completed their professional training and hold a master's degree, or equivalent postgraduate research-oriented qualification. Fellows may be based at UK universities, medical or dental schools, research council institutes and units, charity-funded research centres, or other approved academic institutions.

The fellowship lasts for up to four years. At the postdoctoral level, the award covers salary, training costs, consumables, travel costs and capital equipment, and all other relevant costs under full economic costs. At the pre-doctoral level, the fellowship includes salary up to but not including NHS consultant level, and a research training support grant of up to £15,000 per year.

YOUNG INVESTIGATOR AWARD American Society of Clinical Oncology

Description:

The American Society of Clinical Oncology invites applications for its young investigator award. This award provides funding to promising investigators to encourage and promote quality research in clinical oncology. The purpose of the award is to fund physicians during the transition from a fellowship program to a faculty appointment. Proposals with a clinical research focus are supported; preclinical in vitro and animal studies are acceptable as long as the outcome of these studies would ultimately lead to patient-orientated clinical research.

Applicants must be physicians (MD, DO or international equivalent with explanation) who are currently in the last two years of their subspecialty training at an academic medical institution at the time of grant submission. The applicant must also be a member of ASCO, or submit a membership application with the grant application. The amount of the award is $50,000 for one year. Applicants must have a mentor in the proposed research field from a sponsoring institution.

MEDWIN PRIZE IN ACOUSTICAL OCEANOGRAPHY Acoustical Society of America

Description:

The Acoustical Society of America invites applications and nominations for its Medwin prize in acoustical oceanography. This prize will honor continuing research accomplishments of young and mid-career scientists in acoustical oceanography. Consideration will be given to individuals whose work demonstrates the candidate's effective use of sound in the discovery and understanding of physical and biological parameters and processes in the sea. For the purposes of this prize, research based solely on computer models will not be accepted as a substitute for ocean experiments or effective, small-scale laboratory models and experiments. A prize of $2,000 will be awarded to the successful candidate, who must be under the age of 46 on January 1, 2011. The applicant or nominee need not be a member of the ASA.

FELLOWSHIPS

New York Public Library

Description:

The New York Public Library invites applications under its Dorothy and Lewis B Cullman Center for Scholars and Writers international fellowship program. The program is designed for people whose work will benefit directly from access to the collections at the Stephen A. Schwarzman Building (formerly the Humanities and Social Sciences Library). This includes academics, independent scholars, and scientists and lawyers engaged with the humanities.

The library is a resource for study in anthropology, art, geography, history, languages and literature, philosophy, politics, popular culture, psychology, religion, sociology, and sports. The Cullman Center's selection committee awards 15 fellowships a year. Each fellow receives a stipend of $65,000 and must reside at the Cullman Center for the duration of the fellowship term, which runs from September through May. Foreign nationals conversant in English are welcome to apply.

KISTLER PRIZE

Foundation for the Future

Description:

The Foundation for the Future invites applications for its annual Kistler prize. The purpose of the prize is to acknowledge and encourage scientific research that demonstrates the connections between current genetic trends in human populations and the long-term impact on the viability and survivability of the human race, society, and culture. The prize is awarded annually to a scientist or research institution that has made original, substantive, and innovative contributions in the study of the connections between the human genome and human society. Candidates must have produced scholarly work as defined in these guidelines:

- the research must be in the field of genetics, which is defined as the study of the physical and functional unit of heredity (DNA) that carries information from one generation to another;

- the scholarship must increase knowledge about the human genetic base;
- the research must contribute to understanding about the role of genetics in human society and the implications thereof;
- the research must expand the field of knowledge about the role of genetics heritability and human society, and the implications.

All nationalities are eligible to apply. The prize is worth $100,000.

DISTINGUISHED LORENTZ FELLOWSHIP

Lorentz Center

Description:

The Lorentz Center and the Netherlands Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities and Social Sciences invite nominations for their distinguished Lorentz fellowship. This fellowship is meant to encourage leading figures working in the Netherlands to pursue a research project during a residential fellowship at NIAS that culminates in an international interdisciplinary workshop.

The distinguished Lorentz fellowship is open to researchers from the academic world as well as from other research institutions. The main criterion is that nominees should be able to cross the divide between the social sciences and the humanities on the one hand and the natural or technological sciences on the other. Researchers who have clearly implemented findings from their own interdisciplinary research in service to society may also be nominated.

Each year, members of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences, The Young Academy, directors of the KNAW institutes, boards, deans and governors of the Dutch universities, the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research, the Netherlands Organisation for Applied Scientific Research, public sector knowledge institutions and other research bodies are approached to nominate candidates. Researchers working on interdisciplinary themes, who are themselves interested in the fellowship, can approach someone else to nominate them.

The annual distinguished Lorentz fellowship consists of a personal prize of €10,000, a residential fellowship at NIAS including replacement funds of €5,000 per month for a maximum of ten months for nominees who are resident in the Netherlands, and a budget of €20,000 (and assistance) with which to organise an interdisciplinary workshop at the Lorentz Center that leads to one or more publications.

FELLOWSHIPS

Woodrow Wilson Center for Scholars

Description:

The Woodrow Wilson Center for Scholars invites applications for its fellowships. The fellowships support individuals with outstanding project proposals in a broad range of the social sciences and humanities on national or international issues. Topics and scholarship should relate to key public policy challenges or provide the historical or cultural framework to illuminate policy issues of contemporary importance. Primary themes of interest are:

- governance, including such issues as the key features of the development of democratic institutions, democratic society, civil society, and citizen participation;
- the US role in the world and issues of partnership and leadership - military, political, and economic dimensions;
- key long-term future challenges confronting the US and the world.

The fellowships are open to candidates holding a PhD, candidates demonstrating scholarly achievement by publications beyond their doctoral dissertations and practitioners and policymakers with equivalent achievements. All nationalities are eligible to apply and English proficiency is required.

Stipends usually range between $26,000 and $85,000 for a duration of four to nine months and include travel expenses for fellows and their families, and 75 percent of health insurance premiums for fellows who elect center coverage.

J I STALEY PRIZE School for Advanced Research

Description:

The School for Advanced Research invites nominations for the JI Staley prize. The prize is presented to a living author for a book that exemplifies outstanding scholarship and writing in anthropology. The award recognizes innovative works that go beyond traditional frontiers and dominant schools of thought in anthropology and add new dimensions to the understanding of the human species. It honors books that cross subdisciplinary boundaries within anthropology and reach out in new and expanded interdisciplinary directions.

Authors other than anthropologists are eligible to receive the prize if their work has had a significant impact on scholars and practitioners in the field of anthropology. Nominations may be made by individuals or academic departments. However, self-nominations are not accepted. To be eligible, a book must currently be in print and must have been in publication for at least two years before it is nominated and for no longer than eight years. Co-authored books are eligible, but edited volumes, second or subsequent editions are not. The prize is worth $10,000.
